Lawrence Tubbs

Summer is here!

Hello all my fellow Loma Linda Hoggers and all you others. June was great. We had 5 bikes ride up to the Redwoods. It was a little warm for two days but it was still great.

On July 13 we are riding to Medieval Times for the 3:30 show and meal. Some are driving to it in their vehicle and that is fine as well, the more the merrier.

Watch your Email and the calendar for all the rides and events coming up.

Here's to you, Enjoy life, Ride often and make memories. Hope to see you out there on the road.

Lawrence

As if Sasquatch isn't scary enough, they also have Chipalope and giant spiders in the Redwoods.

We met a nice blind man on the train to SF China Town.

Mark by a hollow tree.

Wait, what's that behind you?

It's a wolf! I'm outta here.

Whew, just someone's dog.

I'm a drifter. It's not just what I do, it's actually who I am, and I like it that way. From the first time I saw an Easyriders magazine back in 1973, I knew that scooting around the back roads on Milwaukee steel was what I wanted to do, so here I am. My creaky bones made a corporate decision more than a decade ago that between my licker knee and my hard tail-battered back, my chopper days were done. But that's okay because the Beast, a 2012 Street Glide, treats me pretty well these days and we keep moving just fine. There's more than 80,000 miles on the odometer and we get along great, so we've settled into the comfort of cruising around to enjoy this great country of ours.

Out of the 48 contiguous states, North Dakota is the only one left that I haven't ridden through, so that's moved to the top of the to-do list for this year. Once all that nasty snow burns off, that is. Not being much of a fan of winter weather, me and the Beast mosey towards the Southwest desert in the fall and linger where the sun still shines in January, but by spring we usually set our sights for California. If you haven't ridden the famous Pacific Coast Highway (PCH), you owe it to yourself to put that trip on your bucket list even though the southern section is pretty congested these days.

One of the most scenic routes in the world, the PCH and S.R. 101 run concurrent along much of the state's 3,427 miles of shoreline, but it's the northernmost section of the 101, where it kicks free of SR 1 at Leggett, that I love the most. A 350-mile long stretch known as the Redwood Highway starts at California's famous Golden Gate Park, ends at the Oregon line, and winds its way through the world's tallest and oldest trees up in Humboldt County. Known worldwide for their pot growing since back in the 1960s, Humboldt is where 17,000 acres of never-felled trees grow undisturbed in the Humboldt Redwoods State Park. These old growth, virgin Redwoods reach for the heavens and leave visitors awe-struck with their magnificence in the famous Avenue of the Giants, which runs parallel to the 101.

The road narrows to little more than a paved path through the mighty behemoths and transports visitors to a place of deep shadows and verdant ferns that grow at the base of trees that are over 1,500 years old. The massive old trees tower above the forest floor to heights of over 350 feet and nothing can make ya feel more insignificant than stopping to stand beside one these massive giants.

If you're into hiking, there are over 100 miles of trails in the park, but personally, I'm happier cruising with the Beast, so I tend to find places to soak up the nature vibes in places where I don't have to work that hard. Like at a campground. My favorite is the Redwood River Resort, which is 27 miles south of the park and offers all the comforts of home. Located right across the 101 from Confusion Hill and offering a variety of cabin options, there are also inexpensive sites where you can set up your homestead right at the base of the Redwoods.

There's nothing like snuggling up in your sleeping bag and drifting off to sleep in the sound of the wind gently rustling through the trees. Owned by a charming little octogenarian Brit named Billie and her family, the property boasts such conveniences as shower and laundry facilities, a built-in pool and a convenience store as well as a comfortable pub that exhibits the family's great sense of humor. Painted to represent an old English phone booth, the pub door sports a sign warning that "Muggles" aren't allowed. That's Harry Potter speak for "non-magical folk."

Inside the pub, everyone is treated like family, and tasty pub grub and a full bar sates guests, while sports are played on the telly. The fire pit outside invites stargazing while sipping wine. If you're lucky, owner Billie will come out to share a glass. Though she's never been a rider, Billie's certain she was a biker in a prior life and proves our her biker heart through the nearby memorial garden she fashioned inside the burned out hollow of a Redwood. Here she lists the names of the biker friends she's made and lost over the years. The lady never met a stranger, and it only takes one stay in the magic forest before you, too, become family.

If you ride out in September, ask about buying a ticket to the famous Feyed Brothers Band's annual anniversary bash and spend the weekend rocking out to some incredible tunes. So c'mon, you deserve some fun! Take a ride up to the Redwoods and soak up some of Mother Nature's magic. I'll see ya out there.
